

UNCG Pride Month: LGBTQ+ History Panel Discussion

In celebration of UNC Greensboro's PRIDE Month in April of 2017, the University Libraries and the Office of Intercultural Engagement sponsored a panel of volunteers, featuring current students, alumni, and faculty who identify as LGBTQ+. The perspective of the LGBTQ+ history of UNCG based upon these panelists spans from the 1970s until present, elaborating upon the gap-filled evidence represented in the university's historical record.

View video presentation here:

UNCG Pride Month: LGBTQ+ History Panel Discussion

Panelists (from L to R): Zachary Johnson, Jay Poole, James V. Carmichael Jr., Kathleen Williams, Dane Hansen; Moderator: Stacey Krim, University Archives

Questions for Reflection:

1. Was there a panelist you particularly related to or a narrative that resonated with you? Why?
2. How did this panel discussion impact your understanding of LGBTQ+ people on a college campus?
3. Did you notice any themes in how our panelists responded to and overcame adversity?
4. Why is programming like this important for our campus community?
5. What will this panel discussion lead you to do differently?

